The real estate prices in Burgas have not been changed in the last 4-5 months. This was announced today by several real estate agencies, which actively work on the market.

They share that for now there is no trend of a price decrease, but there's also no sign of increase.

The main reason for the standstill of prices is the wariness of investors and buyers in the conditions of a global economic crisis.

For now they refrain from purchases, expecting to see the effect of the crisis in the Bulgarian market.

Brokers shared that the price in the future will be determined by the quality of the apartment or house offered.

The execution of the construction, the quality of materials, the location of the property as well as the infrastructure will be very important.

The properties, which have good indicators, will increase in price. The others, however, will go down.
